The dues paid by these members with the receipts of an entertainment and sale in August of that year, furnished the first funds for its maintenance. The sale was held in the Tallmadge House on North street, which its owner, Mrs. Wm. Curtis Noyes, lent for the purpose. Fancy articles were sold in the parlor, the attic studio held an exhibition of pictures by well-known artists, Mr. Hamilton Gibson kindly contributing a number of them. A collection of historic articles was presided over by Miss Mary L. Phelps and her cousin, Miss Cowles, attired in quaint costumes that had come to them as heirlooms.

Later in the season Miss Phelps, assisted by her cousin, gave an exhibition of antiques at her house for the benefit of the Society.

In the fall of 1892 the Society received by vote of the Litchfield County Historical and Antiquarian Society its valuable collection of books and relics, which were in danger of being dispersed. The Indian relics which had been found in Litchfield were of especial value.

The quaint old store on the east side of South street, formerly occupied by Mr. Bronson, was rented, the rapidly growing collection was housed there and the women members of the Society took turns in opening the room, receiving the 10-cent fees and showing the contents to visitors. This plan was followed until 1895, when Miss Phelps was elected Secretary and Curator.

In 1899 Mr. John Arent Vanderpoel offered to put up a building in memory of his grandmother, Mrs. Wm. Curtis Noyes, in which to house a library and the Historical Society's collections. This building was finished in 1901, the collections, which have constantly increased, were put in immediately, and the room has since then been opened to the public without charge.

LITCHFIELD JOURNAL, LITCHFIELD.

Published by I. Bunce.

This was a non-partisan paper, but proved unsuccessful, and upon May 12 (?), 1819, the Litchfield Republican was commenced. In 1821 (May 17?) the Miscellany, in continuation of the Litchfield Republican, appeared in a smaller sized sheet than the former paper. This continued until Feb. 2, 1822, when "for one year from this date the profits arising from the circulation of this paper are bestowed on a young man of this village in order to assist in completing his education." The Miscellany or Juvenile Folio was published on Feb. 9, 1822. The following is taken from the 6th of March, 1822: "The Miscellany or Juvenile Folio is published at I. Bunce's bookstore by the proprietor. The profits of the circulation are for one year transferred to Henry Ward. Terms, 87½ cents at the office. No paper to be discontinued until arrearages are paid." On July 31, 1822, H. Ward "abandons the paper" and for a time there was none published. I. Bunce, as publisher and editor, on Sept. 9, 1822, commenced the publication of the American Eagle, which was moved to New Haven on March 7, 1826.

LITCHFIELD ENQUIRER, LITCHFIELD.

The Litchfield County Post was established in 1825 by Stephen S. Smith from Poultney, Vt. He disposed of the establishment to Joshua Garrett, who after publishing the Post for a few weeks sold out to Henry Adams. In 1829, Mr. Adams changed the name of the paper to the Litchfield Enquirer, which it still bears. During this time it was a five-column folio about half the size of the present paper. It was the only regular paper published in Litchfield county. Mr. Adams was drowned while fishing in Bantam Lake and was the only editor who died "in the harness." He was immediately succeeded by his brother, Chas. Adams, in 1843. In October, 1845, the paper was sold to Payne Kenyon Kilbourne, who conducted it until "ill health caused by many arduous duties caused him to sell" in March, 1853. The new proprietor, H. W. Hyatt, changed the heading from plain block style to the same as the text which has been used ever since. In March, 1856, the size was changed to a larger sheet. Sept. 4, 1856. He sold to Edward C. Goodwin. On May 1, 1858, Chas. Adams again took the editorship and associated with him Henry E. B. Betts. Oct. 13, 1859, James Humphrey, jr., bought the paper, and his foreman was Alexander B. Shumway, who has been with the paper ever since, except for three years during the War of the Rebellion. Mr. Humphrey enlarged the paper to seven columns, a little smaller than the present paper. In 1865, the paper passed into the hands of Wing and Shumway, under whose management it remained for one year, when Geo. A. Hickok bought the paper and secured Mr. Wing as editor. One year later Mr. Hickok commenced the duties of proprietor and editor, which he continued for twenty-five years and gave it its present size. In 1891 he sold the paper to C. R. Duffie, jr. In October, 1894, it was sold to Mr. G. C. Woodruff, who has since continued the paper. Mr. Woodruff has made several important changes in the make-up of the paper and it has had various new dresses, but has not changed the old size of the paper.
